Thaci laid a wreath at the monument for Serbian citizens

21 July 2016

Hashim Thaci

Kosovo President Hashim Thaci laid a wreath at the monument dedicated to the 14 Serbs killed immediately after the war in the village of Graz in Lipljan.

“Today I pray with pain and once again express regret for all victims during and after the war. Each criminal should be brought to light and penalised. A crime is a crime regardless of where it is committed and by whom,” said Thaci.

He also stressed the need to clarify once and for all, the fate of all missing; be it Albanians, Serbs, Roma or any other ethnic community.

We all carry a responsibility to work in that direction. We have a responsibility towards their children and the future of our children. We should help each other. The pain for every mother is the same at the loss of her own child. As Kosovo achieved a lot in these 17 years after the war. We started to build bridges of communication and cooperation. Soon it will bring confidence and reconciliation between communities and nations, said Thaci.
