

Posted 2nd July 2012

Just a quick reminder that the Tony Blair Faith Foundation's film competition, Faith Shorts closes in just one week.

If you are between the age of 14 and 27 and want to share a powerful message about what your faith means to you with the rest of the world, there is still time to enter. Deadline for three minute film submissions is Monday 9th July, 2012.

Find out more about the competition here:

<http://www.faithshorts.org>

We've already received many thought provoking films that challenge some of the presumptions that exist around religion. Now it's your turn to tell your story. If you've already completed your film, remember to submit it by Monday 9th July, 2012.

Don't forget to use the tips and resources section on our website to help you make your film.

Enter Faith Shorts 2012 today.

Best of luck,
The Tony Blair Faith Foundation

P.S. Follow Faith Shorts 2012 on Facebook and Twitter for the latest updates.

The Foundation's global film competition, Faith Shorts, provides young people with the opportunity to express their faith through film, bringing their voices to a global stage.